Ads Get Results

THIS IS ANOTHER dissertation about want ads—the little mediums which are so recognizably popular in the columns of this paper.

With no desire to seem repetitious, but merely because that which is outstanding is always properly classified as news—we cannot refrain from making mention of some results from our latest issue. A patron came into the office and placed an advertisement for two stray cattle, giving minute description. He had been gone an hour when another patron (a lady, by the way) came in and gave an advertisement of two cattle which had taken up at her place. And the descriptions were the same—the lady had found the cattle the farmer had lost. So his advertisement was answered before the advertisement went to print.

Now, don't always expect responses so quick—but this frequently happens. (And that was No. 1).

Another patron came in and placed an advertisement for valuable bird dog—the best he had ever had. He was in distress, and he offered "suitable reward for information." The paper came out and a voice on the phone called the man: "Don't ask my name, nor make further inquiry, but I can tell you your dog has been killed. He was caught eating young pigs." Now, that was not exactly the type of information which a man would be expected to pay a "suitable reward," but it was information—and the paper had brought results. The information at least had brought relieved suspense on the matter.

(And that was No. 2.)

On the afternoon before publication day a young lady whose office is in an adjoining block, came with a tear in her voice. She had lost a watch which she treasured as a gift. Could we hope to recover it for her? So we gave space to the advertisement and started printing. Before the press had completed the grinding out of the nearly 3,000 copies which go out each week, a young man whose place of employment is next door to us, came in and reported that he had picked up a lady's watch. Did we know of anybody having lost such? Yes, it was the watch the lady had been weeping over—and oddly enough, it had been picked up on the sidewalk exactly in front of the Times office. Can that be beat?

Don't ever say advertisements are not effective.

Were Six Tadpoles

AT OUR FAVORITE eating place there were six of us waiting to receive our breakfast. Three of us—Jimmie Redding, Willie Foss and this writer—sat outside the rail and waited more or less anxiously. On the shelf behind the railing were others of our group—three young tadpoles in a jar of water, lazily and patiently indifferent.

With not a sign of motion, those other three pressed their noses against the glass and stared intently toward us who sat on the stools. As we studied them, they returned their gaze. We wondered whence they came, why they were here, and where they were headed. So far as the expression in their eyes spoke, they were wondering about us. Jimmie and Willie were glad they too had not been born tadpoles and the tadpoles apparently were happy that their own lot had been cast along those pleasant lines. The dark haired waitress brought us three on the stools our morning dish, and we turned to the task of refreshment. Then the girl faced about and broke crumbs into the bowl for the three other members of the party—the three tadpoles—and they slowly set themselves to the same pleasant task.

All the while we looked at the other three, they seemed to gaze toward us. If they pressed mystery to us, then what did those three tadpoles make of our presence? They and we had been fed. Three of us laid down cash for what we had eaten; the other three had accepted their breakfast with casual unconcern. We three who wear pants reasoned that our food was earned by our own labors; the three tadpoles manifestly gave no concern as to whence they would next be fed.

Then we three in pants had finished, and as we walked away, we suspected we heard the solemn leader of the tadpole group whispering: "The fish! Yet a little while they will have to feed and clothe themselves, then a benevolent government will reach into their pants and take the bulk of their earnings and scatter it out to make easy the lives of others wearing pants who neither toil nor spin."

And as Jimmie, Willie and the editor walked out, the three tadpoles had on their faces a look of pity. But we, too, were sad, for we knew those braggarts, free from responsibility, could not even get outside the fish bowl if they wished to. We three wearing pants had the advantage—we could go down the street and begin to work for our next breakfast—if we expected to eat breakfast the next morning.

Still Waiting

IT MAY HAVE BEEN Solomon—at least it was somebody in his class for experience—who coined the beautiful promise that "all things come to him who waits."

That has been an outstanding promise in most of our ambitions, and sometimes we have realized on our hope, but not always so far. There was the one weak spot in the promise, which failed to add the qualifying phrase, "who waits long enough." Now, that's the catch, if you ask us; and then the question would be how long is "long enough?"

In the summer of 1943 this paper published by direction of some federal bureau an advertisement in regular order of some land condemnation in connection with the creation of the airport at Statesboro, which advertisement was for a nominal sum. A copy of the published advertisement was sent to the office from which the order was received. Some weeks later there came a notice that it was required that certain certificates be furnished with reference to the wage and hours and general situation in our office being within the required scope of all federal laws, which we must swear to before payment could be made. We didn't know all the laws, and couldn't safely make the needed certificate, so we sent them another copy of the advertisement and expressed the hope that the presence of the advertisement would meet the necessity of the occasion—and that we'd gladly make a donation to the winning of the war.

Approximately two years passed, and some clerk in a bureau wrote us to the effect that our bill remained unpaid in the files of the office, and that it was desired that we would meet the requirements in connection with the case. We explained then our inability to intelligently make the certificate called for in the matter, whereupon he wrote a brief letter and sent a new blank with the instructions, "Just sign here."

Three months later we received a formal notice from Washington that our claim in proper shape had been filed and "if there is further need to correspond, use the foregoing numbers." Then three months still later another notice came that the bill had progressed another step, and another number was given by which to identify it if we needed to further correspond.

Some of you will remember that this paper then lamented that the matter had again been opened, and expressed the hope that Mr. Truman would forget the little item and let us alone.

That was six months ago. Three weeks ago came another (a semi-final it proved to be) which was dated February 24th and which told us "certificate to cover this settlement will be transmitted to the paying office and check in payment should be received in the course of a few days unless otherwise indicated herein," and there was no other indication thereon.

Last week the check arrived! Today it has been placed in the bank for collection, and our transaction (we believe) is closed within four years from its beginning.

TAKES PLANE RIDE HOME AFTER MONTH'S VISIT

Mrs. C. B. Mathews arrived home Monday evening after a visit of six weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Mathews, at her home in Alameda, California. Returning with a lot of praise for the beauties of the state, Mrs. Mathews had at least one experience which few people have had—she was present in an earthquake. Visiting at Los Angeles a week ago today, she happened to be in that city at the time of the earthquake, and she remembers the experience which is more pleasant in the past than in prospect. She flew from California, making the trip in two days.

GOVERNOR TRIMS EIGHT MILLION

Takes Drastic Steps To Carry Forward Without Help Of The Legislature

The budgets of the various state government have been slashed almost eight million dollars below the last quarter in an economy move by Governor M. E. Thompson and State Auditor R. E. Thrasher Jr., who composed the state budget commission. On the basis of state spending for the previous three quarters of the current year, the reduction would mean a curtailment of almost $27,000,000.

The economy move, which reduced allotment for road work, for administrative and operational costs in all agencies and for all services not absolutely essential, was designed to meet the cost of the 50 per cent increase in teachers' salaries.

Part of the reduction was a result of the decreased cost of teachers' salaries for this quarter, which marks the close of the school year. But six million dollars represented actual slashes of departmental requests for funds for needed services. The cuts in the revenue, highway, agriculture and veterans service agencies totalled $1,398,412.

The General Assembly refused to provide added revenue to support the increased salaries pledged by the state Democratic convention, and Governor Thompson announced that he would meet the pledged increase to teachers by drastic economy in other agencies. State Auditor Thrasher issued the following statement upon the state's fiscal situation:

"The total budget allotments approved for the quarter are $16,997,152.30. The average amount of the budget allotment approved per quarter in the previous three quarters of this fiscal year was $23,477,250.22, and the amount approved for the immediately preceding quarter, January 1, 1947, through March 31, 1947, totals $24,210,787.44.

"As can be seen by comparison of the above figures, there has been considerable reduction in the budget approvals for the current quarter. Not only was it necessary to reduce the budgets for this quarter to absorb $4,888,521.22 deficit in income for the past nine months, the budgets having been increased by this amount over the actual income for the period in anticipation of the passage by the General Assembly of the expanded program.

"The state budget officials declare that they are far from being satisfied with the budgets that have been approved, and will continue during the quarter and later quarters to curtail and eliminate services which are not carried on to the best interest of the people and will continue to eliminate personnel who do not perform the work for which they are paid, or who do not perform services which are to the best interest of the people of Georgia.

"The budget bureau recognizes that the functions of the state government are so widely scattered over the entire state of Georgia that it is impossible to determine or put a finger on some of the items that should be curtailed, and they this day are asking the cooperation and support of the taxpayers of Georgia in helping eliminate all items of unnecessary expense."

Highway Patrol Is Being Reorganized

The state highway patrol felt Gov. M. E. Thompson's economy axe this week as forty civilian and uniformed workers were lopped off the payroll. Simultaneously Director J. Q. Davis announced the temporary suspension of operations in three closely grouped highway patrol substations—at Atlanta, Blue Ridge and Canton.

"This brings the strength of the patrol down to 260," Major Davis said, "and that is sufficient providing we restore it to its former state of military discipline."

Major Davis, 37 years old, is a charter member of the group which attended the first patrol school at Georgia Tech in 1937. He was graduated with the rank of corporal, and since has held every rank and grade in the organization. He served as deputy director under Major William E. Spence, his predecessor in office.

Major Davis has also announced the appointment of his two principal assistants, Capt. F. L. Brock, of Lafayette, to command the uniformed division, and Capt. George T. Bagby, Paulding county legislator, to head the Georgia Bureau of Investigation. Both these officers have had many years experience in law enforcement work.

WHY KID OURSELVES?

It's Not a Question of Wet or Dry

It's a Question of Legal or Illegal Sale of Liquor in Bulloch County

History reveals beyond all reasonable doubt that we cannot successfully prohibit the sale of liquor. The full resources of the federal government, with every county in America dry, made a stark failure of prohibition. How can Bulloch county expect to succeed when the United States government failed—and especially with neighboring counties wet?

Prohibition prevents hundreds of thousands of dollars in tax money from reaching our schools and welfare agencies with one hand and puts vast sums into the illicit pockets of the bootleggers with the other. A vote against the legal sale of liquor is a vote for bootlegging . . . there is no mistaking that.

Prohibition caused more disrespect for law and order from 1918 until the national prohibition law was repealed than any other legislative act ever conceived.

Prohibition only serves to make liquor more desirable. Attempt at enforcement causes public reaction similar to rationing; which frequently INCREASES appetites. Remember? It is human nature, apparently, to want things hard to get.

The late President Roosevelt was among the first to realize the failure of prohibition. He, as a leader in repeal, and in advocating legalized, controlled sale of liquor. One of the first legislative acts he advocated and passed in 1933 permitted the LEGAL SALE instead of ILLEGAL SALE OF LIQUOR.

A great majority of statesmen, college presidents, and other leaders in America have frequently expressed favor of LEGAL SALE instead of ILLEGAL SALE of liquor. They are against the BOOTLEGGERS who garner lush profits in so-called dry counties.

LEGAL SALE of liquor will probably NOT INCREASE sales in Bulloch county. But it will CONTROL it and TAX it, which is the best known method of handling the age-old liquor problem.
